to be considered "locally native," plant stock must originate from a location less than 150 miles from Arlington.

We all assume it does, but I don’t think anyone knows for sure.

You understand so much it’s almost onerous to argue with you (not that I truly would need that; haha).

People who smoke K2 for a marijuana-like effect or snort bath salts for a cocaine-like rush are far more likely to call for help than those who drink kratom.
